JOB PRINTING.

The True Northern has one of the best equipped job offices in south-western Michigan, and is prepared to do every kind of book and job printing.

WE inadvertently credited an editorial on the senatorial question last week to the Allegan Press, which should have been credited to the Allegan Gazette. We beg your pardon Bro. Reid.

L. E. KNAPPEN of Grand Rapids has been appointed Judge of the Western District of Michigan, vice Judge Wanty, deceased. Mr. Knappen was not an active candidate for the position, but his appointment to this high office gives general satisfaction. He is an attorney of prominence, a scholarly gentleman and well fitted to fill this important place, with honor to himself and credit to his constituency.

HON. NICHOLAS J. WHELAN is a candidate for speaker of the House. His candidacy is being very favorably received and the Northern hopes to see him successful in his ambition. Mr. Whelan displayed more than ordinary ability during the last session of the legislature. As a parliamentarian he showed rare leadership, his position as speaker pro tem giving him the opportunity desired. Mr. Whelan is an active, hard-working legislator, a worthy representative of his constituency. His being a western Michigan man, it seems as though he should receive the united support of this side of the state.

Why Not Prescott?

In the turmoil over the United States senatorship, why could not the legislature compromise upon a man whom every one recognizes as one of Michigan's brightest and most esteemed of men? George A. Prescott is outside the active whirl of the active politician. He is closely allied to Michigan's industrial growth, being engaged in the lumbering, stock raising and farming industries. Mr. Prescott is a man beloved and respected by every one, a man of wonderful resource and ability. While looking about you, gentlemen, can you name a better man?

For any pain, from top to toe, from any cause, apply Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil. Pain can't stay where it is used.

"Consistency, Thou Art a Jewel."

The following appeared in the editorial columns of the Courier last week:

Members of the Michigan legislature will pay their fares on trips to Lansing this winter. Withering blasts of truth these reports prove to be. The railroad men meant what they remarked: "No deadhead this time." Pastboard has heretofore been copiously passed around among the solons. Now a representative of the dear people who wants to slip out of Lansing for Chicago, Detroit or Toledo will have to dig up the price, which will probably hurt worse than the lie he usually writes to his wife about going off with a large and important committee to investigate something. These Friday trips will be stopped to a large extent and the morals of the members improved and the businesses of the gay elements in the cities correspondingly damaged. No high-built cobblers or seductive cocktails, with the railroads as participants in the crime. Railroad magistrates are not submitting patiently to the burden of $8,000,000 extra taxation. They can not see why they should be required to pay like common folks and still haul the legislators for nothing. It is a measure of revenge.

The above is truly a remarkable statement to come from the democratic Courier, and in our judgment is inconsistent. The present railroad tax law was passed by a republican legislature, during the administration of Governor Bliss, and was signed by that gentleman. The enforcement of the law has been in the hands of officials, either elected by the republicans of Michigan or appointed by Governor Bliss or Governor Warner. Yet the Courier has repeatedly assured us that the republican governors were the "subservient tools" of the railroad interests of this state. Again we repeat, "Consistency, thou art a jewel."

A Creditable Magazine.

November issue of Michigan Life is on the news stand and there is a copy on our desk which looks good and reads good to us. Locally there is much to interest the people of this section. The short stories, of which there are many, are of the highest grade and every one is of intense interest, among them being "Rani, the Soulless," "A successful Failure," "At the Bend," "Dutchy" and "Nails," besides several others of equal interest. Glances of Russia, by S. R. Stoddard, a continuation of his Travel Tales, is one of the best articles we have read in some time. There is a variety of other good matter together with fashions, and an instrumental selection, Golden Dream March by Treloar, which alone is worth the price of one year's subscription, 50 cents. Single copies at the news stand, 10 cents.

Dailey-Taylor

Wednesday, November 28th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Taylor, occurred one of the pleasantest weddings of the year, when their daughter Clara was given in marriage to Guy Dailey of Lawton.

After a half hour of social greetings the wedding march, played by Mrs. Haworth, brought Rev. H. W. Harvey into view followed by little Ward Taylor as ring bearer, and two little fairies, Edith and Vivian, nieces of the bride, as flower girls, by Grace Dailey as maid of honor, and Robert Bangs as best man, then the bride upon the groom's arm.

A solemn hush and in his own happy way Mr. Harvey addressed the young couple. He told of his interest as he had watched the infant bud blossom into the beautiful bride; he told them of the magic key of love that would open the doors to happiness; he adjured them always to be lovers and asked God's blessing upon the union and with the ring service he made them man and wife.

The bride was becomingly attired in a white gown trimmed elaborately with lace, made entirely by her mother, every stitch a thread of love woven in. The groom was in conventional black. After congratulations the company was invited to a spacious dining room where two long tables were decorated with smilax, cut flowers and ribbon. Forty were seated and a three course supper was deftly served by young friends of the bride. The tables were cleared and reset until about 90 were served.

Mr. Dailey brought forth the usual box of cigars. Mrs. Dailey came upon the scene this time in a traveling suit of dark green broad cloth and as she took the arm of her husband for the carriage in waiting they were generously showered with rice and followed by many a God speed and the best wishes of all. Mr. Dailey is one of Lawton's young business men and Clara is one of Auntie's most loved daughters. Both are to be congratulated.

The presents were numerous and fine. Silver, cut glass, china, linen, quarter sawed oak in rockers and tables, and several pictures, paintings and engravings testifying to the love and esteem of friends. After a few days' travel they return to take up their residence in Lawton.

Fruit Growers

And others having at heart the welfare of our great fruit country:

There will be a meeting at the Village Council Rooms (over Engine House) TUESDAY EVENING, DEC. 11, at 7:30, to organize under a plan by which the planter practically runs no risk as to varieties or disease in the trees he obtains in this way. The cost will be greatly reduced and the expense of becoming a member will be within the reach of all.

This is the move that Fruit Growers had ought to have made years ago.

Thousands of dollars can be saved by the members annually and YOU ARE NEEDED to help boost the enterprise just now.
